

Slice of MIT Podcast | Clip: Anne Williams '67 and Terry Williams '67

ANNE WILLIAMS: I'm Anne Williams, Class of '67.

WILLIAMS:

TERRY WILLIAMS: I'm Terry Williams, class of '67.

WILLIAMS:

ANNE WILLIAMS: And we first met at our advisor's office.

TERRY WILLIAMS: And we were in line, for what, I don't know. But we were close together in the line.

WILLIAMS:

[MUSIC PLAYING]

ANNE WILLIAMS: One of the things that we did was attend Professor DeBrine's class 301. And I had a terrible time with all the fact that everybody smoked at MIT when we were there. And so I used to go in and sit right next to somebody who didn't smoke. And then I'd watch the door and hope that Terry would be the next one in, because he didn't smoke. And I'd give him a big smile to lure him to sit right next to me.

[MUSIC PLAYING]

We used to sit out in the Great Court sometimes.

TERRY WILLIAMS: Yes, I remember studying math together in the Great Court.

WILLIAMS:

ANNE WILLIAMS: And that really was kind of romantic in the traditional sense.

TERRY WILLIAMS: Mhm. And then we got married.

WILLIAMS:

ANNE WILLIAMS: Yep, yep. And we've been married for 51 years about a week ago. [LAUGHTER]

[MUSIC PLAYING]